THE CASE OF McLEOD. Editorial Correspondence.

Utica, Monday, September 27.

The Circuit Court for the Fifth Circuit of this State was to-day opened in the Court House-Justice GRIDLEY of this city presiding, in the absence of Chief Justice Nelson, detained at home (Cooperstown) by protracted adisposition. It was intimated some days since that the Chief Justice might not feel able to attend this Circuit, and that Judge Gridley would not undertake the trial at once, as, not expecting to try it, he had not prepared himself, and wished time to consult authorities on the important points of international as well as criminal law certain to arise.

Three Judges of the County Courts appeared on the Bench with Judge Gridley. The Court House was crowded, in good part with witnesses and persons strongly interested in the trial.
